

FELDESMAN+TUCKER+LEIFER+FIDELL

FQHC Considerations in Governance and C
Suites' Roles in DSRIP and Integrated Delivery Systems

Governance Considerations

Jacqueline C. Leifer, Esq.
Senior Partner

INTEGRATED DELIVERY SYSTEMS: IN THEORY

INTEGRATED DELIVERY SYSTEMS: IN REALITY

Integrated Delivery Systems may actually feel more like this.

BOARD'S ROLE IN EVALUATING INTEGRATED DELIVERY SYSTEM PARTNERS

- The Board of Directors plays a key role in evaluating and approving the health center's participation in any significant collaboration or affiliation, including integrated delivery networks
- As the “eyes,” “ears” and “voice” of the community, the health center Board should consider:
 - Is participation consistent with the health center's mission and strategic goals?
 - Is participation consistent with the health center's responsibilities towards its patients and the community overall?
 - Is participation financially and legally feasible?
- Respect Board-Management roles

GOVERNANCE OF PPS's

- Health centers that participate in integrated delivery systems must assure that the Board retains community based composition and autonomy regarding key authorities:
 - Participation must be structured so that no other entity exercises control over the health center
 - However, Section 330 does not prevent health centers from owning and controlling other entities such as PPS's
 - Optimally, the health center would be able to negotiate a primary or at least significant role in the PPS's governance
- Assess the health center's strengths and weaknesses in the context of a dynamic marketplace
 - What value does the health center bring to the "system"?
 - Who benefits from that value and, importantly, who is willing to pay for it?
 - Does the health center have the ability, temperament, and support to accept and manage risk?

QUESTIONS?

Jacqueline C. Leifer, Esq.

JLeifer@FTLF.com

Feldesman Tucker Leifer Fidell LLP
1129 20th Street N.W. - Suite 400
Washington, D.C. 20036
(202) 466-8960
www.ftlf.com