

Emeritus Group

Senior Health Center Executives

What is the “Emeritus Group?”

A NACHC member service connecting retired health center executives with current health center managers as peers and confidants.

Why the “Emeritus Group?”

Provides an opportunity for retired health center executives to share their knowledge and experience with managers and other members of the health center movement.

How can the “Emeritus Group” Assist?

Group members are available to work with health center managers in many areas that may challenge them today, e.g., board relations, managing financial crises, handling human resource management issues, succession planning, etc.

How does the “Emeritus Group” work with other health center executives?

Initial contact through email, then highly confidential phone dialogues – some situations may result in on-site visit(s).
